INTRODUCTION

Laundry is an essential part of life for most people. As long as clean clothes are in demand, a laundry business will be too. After all, not everyone has their own washer and dryer, or the time to wash their clothes themselves. This makes starting a business in the laundry industry a great option for budding entrepreneurs.

Laundry businesses are most popular in areas with lots of apartment buildings or where people don't necessarily have their own washing machines. You may choose to open a laundry business that allows customers to come in and do their laundry using your machines, or you can also offer wash and fold services, where customers can drop off their laundry, and then pick it up once it's done
